THE EUROPEAN CRISIS.

EXCITEMENT AMONG THE POWERS.

Discussions of the Peace Proposals in the English Parliament--German and Austrian Action.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Answering a prolonged explanation from Carnarvon who had resigned, Earl Beaconsfield said that after listening to Lord Carnarvon's speech one was at a loss to understand why he resigned. He reminded his hearers that the government when laying down British interests had declared that the occupation of Constantinople would not be regarded with indifference and England desired the maintenance of the existing treaty regulations as to the straits in ordering the fleet to the Dardanelles, in certain contingencies the government desired simply to guard these interests, unless they acted up to their despatch defining England's interests it might be [illegible] as words. He [illegible] the conditions [illegible] their neutrality were violated with respect to any of the foregoing points, all his colleagues were resolved to do the best, their duty to their country and their sovereign required them to maintain the policy they had laid down, relative to Egypt.

If those who said the government had taken endless precaution in stipulating for the exclusion of Egypt from the theatre of war, had all the wild and perilous propositions that the government had heard, they would be of a different opinion. The Cabinet never hesitated or differed regarding the adhesion to the policy of conditional neutrality, although the method of carrying the policy into effect, was of course a question open to discussion. The government should, at a proper moment, be perfectly prepared to vindicate the measures which they had taken. He believed these measures were likely to have a most satisfactory effect. He must tell the House frankly that these measures were a part of the consistent policy that the government had resolved to pursue and which they originally announced, namely, to observe neutrality. But if that neutrality were to depend upon their allowing their greatest interests not to be defended, he would say he was no longer in favor of neutrality, but of the interests of his country and honor of his sovereign.

Earl Granville asked whether an armistice had been arranged and what its terms were? Lord Beaconsfield replied relative to the date and form of what he (Lord Granville) termed an armistice, there was no such instrument in existence. He added that it was only decided on Tuesday last to send the fleet to the Dardanelles, therefore the government were not concealing anything when Parliament opened.

The resignation of Lord Derby is a surprise.

It is believed the Duke of Richmond will succeed Carnarvon.

When the order to enter the Dardanelles was communicated to the Admiral he was ordered to remain in a position where he can cover Gallipoli.

The latest lobby rumors are pacific.

The Earl of Derby has not been at the Foreign Office for two days. His health is said not to be as good as at the beginning of the week. He is transacting the business of his department at his private residence. It is believed that his resignation has been withdrawn. It is also thought that the government will not now deem it necessary to ask for a supplementary estimate and that a statement to that effect on Monday will accompany the announcement of the conclusion of the armistice. If the note is persisted in in face of Turkey's acceptance of Russia's conditions, it will be opposed by the Liberals and by all means in their power.

Trustworthy advices from Vienna indicate that Austria also had begun to look for something more tangible than general assurances. [NOTE. It is reported that the Russian demand for the retrocession of Bessarabia may have influenced the German action. The uneasiness of the Austrian government is further increased by the complication in the home policy. The question which led to the resignation of Anoisperg Ministry are involved. In the Austrian Hungarian compromise, an agreement relative to certain custom tariffs had been drawn up by Prince Anoisperg himself, but was rejected by the Chamber of Deputies. Though the crisis does not extend to the cabinet common to Austria and Hungary, of which Count Andrassy is Prime Minister, it is feared that indirectly it will affect the general policy of the government, inasmuch as its attention will now be divided between home and foreign affairs, and differences of opinion between Vienna and Pesth, which had been allowed to lie dormant at great risk of being revived.

The Daily Telegraph issued a special edition containing the following:

"GALLIPOLI, 3:50 P. M.—The guns are firing a heavy salute at the Dardanelles. The English fleet is coming. LATER.—Admiral Hornboy took the fleet up to the mouth of the Dardonelles where, at the telegraph station, he received the countermand. He did not therefore proceed to the forts, but returned to Besika Bay."

FORTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

The Texas Pacific Rail Road Before the Committee---Tom Scott's Speech.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The Senate is not in session.

HOUSE.—In the debate Mr. Bright spoke upon the remonetization of the silver dollar, of which he was earnestly in favor. He contended that the demonetization of the silver dollar was a violation of the Constitution and a fraud upon the people and the legislation of the United States, and a fraud upon posterity.

The argument of the Texas Pacific Railway question was resumed before the House Committee on the Pacific Railroads. Mr. Storrs having finished his statement of the legal points upon which the Southern Pacific Railroad of California desired the right to build through to El Paso, Governor J. C. Brown, Vice-President of the Texas & Pacific Road, discussed fully the broad general questions which had governed the policy of the Government in aiding the construction of the commercial highways. In this connection he argued that all the statesmen, even of the school of strict constructionists, with Calhoun at their head, had maintained the absolute powers of the United States to extend this aid, and that one of the main inducements to the negotiation of the Gadsden treaty had been the acquisition of the territory along the thirty-second parallel, through which ran the natural route for a trans-continental railway. He then maintained by the decision of the United States Supreme Court, that Congress had full power to authorize the erection of bridges over navigable streams, and that the Southern Pacific of California, had no authority to bridge the Colorado so as to come eastward, the Texas Pacific alone having that authority. He quoted from the sworn reports of the Central and Southern Pacific Companies joint ownership of which was practically in Messrs. Stanford, Huntington, Crocker and Hopkins, showing their present floating debt to be nearly fourteen million of dollars, besides a bonded debt of nearly thirty million of dollars on the constructed portion of the Pacific Road, and argued from this that these gentlemen had neither the money nor the credit to build any more lines, and that their only purpose here was to prevent the construction of a line that would compete with the Central Pacific. He then discussed the various bills presented by Messrs. Stephens, [illegible], Chalmers and Willis, and showed that they all favored the construction of a competing line between the Mississippi and the Pacific ocean, differing only as to the branches to be built from the terminus of the Texas and Pacific to the river; also that none of them permitted a single bond to be issued by the company except to represent the actual cost, which could not exceed $23,000 per mile; that the Texas Pacific had already built 445 miles of the road without a dollar of aid from the government, and that justice required the extension of the aid asked by it. as the Union and Central Pacific companies had received fifty-four millions of dollars of bonds and fifty-three millions of acres of land, the Northern Pacific forty-seven millions of acres of land, and the Texas & Pacific only eighteen millions of acres, no portion of which could the latter receive until after it had built a thousand miles through the State of Texas.

Mr. Thomas A. Scott, President of the Texas & Pacific Railroad Company, then briefly reviewed the grounds upon which the government aid was asked and the advantages which the government and people would secure through a competing line. He showed that with the present prices of labor and material, and the ability to market the bonds at par, which would be secured by the government's endorsement of the interest thereon, the whole amount of the annual interest to be paid out of the earnings of the line, would be less than two millions of dollars, while the present Trans-continental Railroad line has to earn more than four times that amount. He further claimed that under the plan proposed, the interest would be paid each six months by the Texas Pacific Company, while the Sinking Fund would gradually redeem the principal and leave the road ultimately without debt; that under the power reserved to the government to regulate the rates so as to take care of the actual capital, these rates would annually be reduced, to the great benefit of the government and the people and that the government alone would save three millions of dollars yearly by the building of the road, more than the entire interest on the bonds if it never earned a cent. Mr. Scott claimed that the Central Pacific Company had no intention to build a line to compete against themselves, but merely offered to build a road to prevent its construction. That they were not bound to build a mile and if their bill passed they could simply sit still six years, and during that time monopolize the entire traffic across the continent and tax it as onerously as they were doing now, without any action. That the Texas Pacific road had spent sixteen million of dollars in good faith, and had it not been for the panic of 1873, would have had the whole line nearly completed by this time, and under the act proposed would complete it by the year 1882. Mr. Scott closed with a strong appeal to the committee to look at the question not in the light of technicalities, but on the broad ground of the interest of the whole country, and expressed his conviction that every member of Congress who aided in securing this great highway—on a basis just to the people and in the interest of the government as a competing line between the two oceans—would in after years regard it as one of the proudest achievements of his political life. The committee then adjourned until Tuesday morning, when the arguments will be concluded.

Washington Notes.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Yesterday's votes, and gossip relating thereto, indicate 52 votes for the silver bill, but Secretary Sherman is going to feed the Finance Committees of the House and Senate Monday night.

General Sherman, in a letter to Secretary Schurz, confesses the integrity, but questions the efficiency of Indian Commissioner Smith.

The National Convention of Steamboat Inspectors in session here, endorse and recommend the adoption of Prof. Girard's automatic alarm. It is a safeguard against fire, and registers the depth of water in the holds of vessels.

The Elections Committee of the House considered the California case five hours to-day, and will decide the matter Monday.

Vessels Wrecked.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 26.—A portion of the crew of the bark King Philip, which went ashore to-day, reached land in a small boat. A number of the crew remain on the vessel.

The ship, Western Shore, which drifted into the breakers, still holds on by her anchors. Several steam tugs attempted to rescue the vessel from her perilous situation, but did not succeed. Captain Blum, commander of the Western Shore, was killed by the parting of the hawser, which struck him on the rebound. The bark, Don Nicholas, which lay in a more favorable position, has been towed off and brought into the harbor. The latest reports to-night represent that the sea is rising. The King Philip is valued at $25,000. She was uninsured.

Failures.

PITTSBURG, PA., Jan. 26.—R. and J. Watson, coal dealers of this city, have filed a petition in bankruptcy. They have considerable property in New Orleans and St. John's Parish. Liabilities $200,000; assets nearly the same amount.

THE CONFEDERATE SHARPSHOOTERS.

The Romance and Fascinating Perils of their Duty.

(Captain John D. Young in Phila. Weekly Times.)

The organization and operation of the corps of sharpshooters of the Army of Northern Virginia will possess, if not for the general public, at least for the intelligent military student, the interest that naturally attaches to every movement new in the details of the service—a service the necessities of which developed many expedients before unknown in the annals and science of war. There were incidents connected with its manner of independent and advanced operations which cannot fail, from their unique and striking character, to possess a common interest for all. It was the fortune of the sharpshooters to experience all the romance and glamour of war; and to these was added enough of danger to make the service exciting and exhilarating. Placed between the lines of two great armies they saw at least the beginnings of all movements, and had the first intimations of that pleasurable feeling—the gaudia certaminis—which battle ever brings to the heart of the true soldier. Their time was not spent in weary waiting for the order to advance; nor were they, except in rare instances, subjected to the trying ordeal of remaining quiet under fire, with no power to return the compliment. From the earliest opening of battle to its tragic close the ears of the sharpshooters were made familiar with the peculiar music of the rifle, and their whole mind was exercised in the problem of affording as much annoyance as possible to the enemy. A battalion was composed of one commandant, eight commissioned officers, ten non-commissioned officers, one hundred and sixty privates, four scouts and two buglers, specially selected and drafted from each brigade. These were divided into four companies, equally officered. As it was a matter of the utmost importance that men should be chosen of tried courage and steadiness, who were good marksmen and possessed of the requisite self-confidence, great care and caution were exercised in the drafts. Company commanders were ordered to present none for duty with the sharpshooters who did not come up to the standard; while the commandant of each battalion, assisted by his lieutenants, personally superintended the examination of all recruits offered for this branch of the service. The company officers in the corps were equally set apart for their military reputations with respect to zeal, intelligence and personal gallantry. As soon as the requisite number of men was obtained a separate camp was established, and in every respect the command was placed on an independent footing—reporting, as in case of a regiment, directly to brigade headquarters. Thus closely associated together, rank and file soon learned to know and to rely upon each other. Still further, to increase this confidence, the companies were subdivided into groups of fours, something like the comrades de battaille of the French army. These groups messed and slept together, and were never separated in action save by its casualties of disability and death. The further strengthening of this body of troops was helped to be accomplished by thorough drill.

The Widow Hicks in Youth.

(Newburgh N. Y.) Cor. New York Sun.)

"When she was young she was the prettiest girl in this part of the country and lived over at Fishkill, at the 'corners' somewhere, I think. I knew her well and have escorted her home from singing school lots of times." This remark was made to-day by an old Newburgher, and the "prettiest girl" alluded to is no less a person than Mrs. Hicks-Lord, whose marriage to the rich octogenarian of New York has created such a stir there. "Yes," he continued, "I was well acquainted with her when she was about 20 years of age. At that age she came over to Newburg to attend singing school. The teacher of the school was Pliny Jewell, now one of the Jewell Brothers, the great belt manufacturers of Connecticut, and a brother of Marshall Jewell, Postmaster-General under Grant. For a time it was an enigma to the young fellows why she called herself Miss Wilken, while her mother went by another name; but she explained it by telling that her mother had married a second time. Miss Wilken was undoubtedly the handsomest girl hereabouts, and her beauty attracted the attention of all the young fellows of the then village of Newburgh, many of whom became infatuated and nearly went crazy over her. Besides having a beautiful face she had a splendid figure and a clear, melodious voice. There was great rivalry among the young men at Mr. Jewell's singing school to see who should escort her home."

The Last of the Turkish Commanders.

Suleiman is described by a correspondent of the London Times as a most unostentatious and reserved man. His tent consists of a simple piece of canvas stretched across two sticks, under which he crawls at night and sleeps on the ground, and, being once in, leaves no room to spare for a shake-down for anybody else. Guards, sentries, orderlies, and all the pomp and circumstance of military rank are dispensed with and his two or three aides-de-camp bivouac in like style near him. His two horses are picketed in front of his tent, with their saddles on their backs and take their chance of forage with the rest of the cavalry in the same way that their master expects no different fare from the rest of the army. He is a man of about forty to forty-five, tall and strongly built, with a rough, weather-beaten face, a forehead very much wrinkled, and a short red beard and moustache. In detail and in matters of organization he seems to have great readiness, a quick perception of what is necessary as to provisioning, forwarding ammunition, or any other administrative part of the generalship, while at the same time he appears to have the intuitive qualities of a born commander, which enable him to carry out a plan rapidly and successfully without going through any of the accepted and round-about methods of modern warfare.

The Eucalyptus Tree.

[Baltimore Sun]

A Rome correspondent of the Philadelphia Press gives an interesting account of the sanitary virtues of the eucalyptus tree. He says that the supposed place of the execution of St. Paul, some two miles outside the walls of Rome, and on which there has long been a monastery, was one of the most pestiferous spots in that malaria-affected atmosphere. Such was the mortality among the monks that for more than fifty years no one lived in the monastery. Now, by the careful management of some Trappists, a grove of the poison-absorbing eucalyptus tree has been raised to a great height, and for the last three years the monks have been able to live there with perfect impunity, and it is now as healthy as the Quirinal itself—the most salubrious section of the city.

The Newbern Fire.

(Condensed from the Newbernian.)

About 10 o'clock on last Wednesday night, our city was thrown in a furore of excitement by the alarm of fire, and as we reached the scene of conflagration, we found thr building of Berry & McGowam, on the west side of Middle street below South Front,, enveloped in flames. Soon our firemen, white and colored, made their appearance and commenced operations; but before they got to work the flames were rapidly spreading on either side of the burning building, and despite the efforts of our gallant firemen, who were nobly assisted by our citizens, in a short period three or four buildings were in a light blaze, and for some length of time the fire was apparently beyond the control of human hands. But the firemen continued their efforts, and at last the devouring element was brought to a stand still. The fire spread up the street northward as far as T. A. Green's store which was almost totally destroyed, and southward to the Windley building, occupied by S. H. Lane, which was entirely consumed. The stores burned were Messrs. T. A. Green's, James Redmond's, Berry & McGowan's and S. H. Lane's; Mr. Green being the heaviest loser, both in stock and buildings.

Several of our military were on hand and "being fully armed and equipped," ably seconded the police in their efforts to keep the peace, and prevent stealing.

The following is a list of the losses by fire, and in moving goods from the vicinity of the burning buildings, as furnished us by the parties interested: H. Sperling $500, covered by insurance; Wm. Salter $1,500, insured for $800; James Redmond $2,000, insured for $600; Berry & McGowan $3,500, insured for $2,500; West Styron $125, fully insured; Blank & Ulrich, stock damaged by water, insurance $1,000; S. H. Lane $2,500, insurance $1,500; Windley Bros., loss on building occupied by S. H. Lane, $1,500, insured for $1,000; T. A. Green, loss on stock and buildings, $4,500, insured for $2,000; J. H. Bell loss on building, $300, no insurance; Alex. Holton $150, no insurance; B. Schwerin $900, fully insured.

The fire originated in the store of Berry & McGowan, and was undoubtedly caused by some defect in the stove pipe.

Story of King Alfonso's Courtship.

(From the New York Times.)

The royal Spanish wedding is the sequel to a case of true love in a palace, the course of which, however, has run none too smothly. From the time when, in exile, Alfonso first looked with loving eyes upon the Infanta Mercedes, his wishes were opposed, until quite recently, not only by the Spanish Cabinet but by his mother, ex-Queen Isabella, who bitterly denounced all alliance between her son and the daughter of her own sister. A violent animosity to Duke de Montpensier, the young lady's father, existed not only with Isabella, but among the members of her little court at Seville. They refused to pardon the liberal conduct of the Duke in 1866, and his connection with Prim and the Progressists. They professed to despise Montpensier as belonging to a family, of which the modern founder was Philippe Egalite, "the profligate revolutionary Prince, who was false to his King, and met with a just reward for his crime upon the unsparing Republican scaffold." Any plan or idea of alliance seemed more welcome in their eyes, and in the Alcazar of Seville, than that with the daughter of the Orleans and liberal Prince. These partisans went so far as to cast their eyes on a German and even on an English Princess, not supposing for a moment that daughters of the Protestant dynasties would hesitate between their faith and the prize offered them. They invoked the Almanach de Gotha and praised every maiden princess in Europe rather than the Infanta Mercedes. But the young King was deeply in love with his charming cousin, and she reciprocated his passion. His heart could not be turned from its alliance, and he preserved faithfully the affection he had pledged—an affection which had sprung up in exile, had increased during absence, and had survived the return of fortune. While Alfonso's suit was bitterly opposed by his mother and her partisans, it was aided by that best of sisters, the Princess of the Asturias. In August last, Duke de Montpensier and his family returned to Spain, and their welcome by the King proved beyond doubt that no resistance on the part of mother or Prime Minister would change his will. The ex-Queen went herself to the Escurial to try what her influence could do to delay, if not change, the final decision of her son. This interview took place about the middle of last September. The King had arrived late in the night, and, though greatly fatigued by a long journey, spent several hours closeted with the Queen-mother. The next morning he had another talk of several hours with her, and then the Ministers were summoned to attend a general council at Madrid. The result was a victory for Isabella, but her triumph was of short duration. Her friends were elated, and her proposed trip to France was postponed. More than this, it was announced with great glee that the King would stop three or four days in the Escurial with his mother before she departed, with her three daughters, for the Alcazar, near the banks of the Guadalquiver.

It was during this short interval that the King contrived to prevail upon Isabella to yield to his wishes and give an ungracious consent to the marriage. His faithful sister, the Princess of the Asturias, was the first to communicate the news to her cousin Mercedes, and the royal lovers were speedily brought together. The next day the Princess of the Asturias, the Duke and Duchess de Montpensier, and the Infanta Mercedes called upon the ex-Queen and thanked her for the great happiness she had aided in bestowing.

Rev. Dr. Curry, for several terms a member of the Federal Congress from Alabama, and at present president of Richmond (Va.) College, has yielded to a request from leading citizens to deliver a lecture in that city next week on "The moral obligations both of individuals and of States to pay their debts."

WHISKEY AND TOBACCO.

Indications Favorable for Reduction of the Tax.

(Washington correspondent of the Richmond Dispatch.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.

The most influential commercial reporter here says to-day that the Dispatch's reporter is right in saying the tobacco-tax will be reduced to 16 cents and the whiskey-tax to 60 cents; but that while the House sub-Committee of Ways and Means will report in favor of this, the full committee will not agree with them, but that the House will endorse the sub-committee and vote in favor of the reduction named. Your correspondent, after a full conference with those who ought to know best, adheres to the assertion that the full committee will report in favor of a reduction on both tobacco and whiskey, as has been indicated in these dispatches.

To-day Mr. Tucker made a strong fight in favor of taking up his joint resolution for extending the bonded time for [illegible] to July, 1878, so as to prevent a loss to distillers by the legislation of Congress in the meanwhile, tending to a reduction of the tax below ninety cents per gallon. He was earnestly seconded by Mr. Blackburn, of Kentucky and Sayler, of Ohio, and fought by Mr. Hale, of Maine, who didn't want any advantage given to whiskey. When Mr. Hale asked where the deficit in revenue was to come from when the tax on whiskey was reduced, Colonel Ben. Wilson, of West Virginia, said, from incomes.

Mr. Price, of Iowa, and others, took sides with Mr. Hale, and the contest was a lively one.

Mr. Tucker finally succeeded in getting his joint resolution before the House, and it gratified the friends of reduction to see that on each vote he won a substantial victory, although he was opposed most energetically by Republican members.

Mr. Burchard (Republican), of the Committee of Ways and Means, advocated the joint resolution.

The final speeches of Messrs. Tucker and Blackburn in reply to Mr. Hale were scathing and highly effective, and gave much encouragement to the tobacco and whiskey reductionists.

The joint resolution, after a protracted session, went over, and the indications are that it will pass.

The Western Wife Crop.

(From the New York Times.)

It is the firm belief of Frenchmen that every Englishman has a legal right to sell his wife at public auction. When Sir Gladstone or Sir Bright becomes tired of his wife, all he has to do, according to French belief, is to place a rope around her neck, and to put her up at auction "sur les champs de Smith." Of course, no one pretends that this is the universal habit of all Englishmen, but that it is the recognized method of ridding one's self of an obnoxious wife is as firmly believed by the average Frenchman as is the theory that all Englishmen keep shops and live in hourly dread lest a French army should cross [illegible] and avenge Waterloo. What the Frenchman erroneously believes of England is actually true of this country. The great, free, progressive West has just adopted the practice of selling both wives and maidens at public auction. Hitherto we have occasionally sold our marriageable young ladies at private sale, but to the enterprising citizens of Racine, Wis., belongs the honor of having introduced the pleasing and useful practice of selling assorted ladies of all varieties under the hammer of the auctioneer.

Racine possesses a society, either charitable or otherwise, known by the name of the Racine Society. The treasury of this organization has recently been sadly devoid of money, and the members decided that something must be done to improve its condition. Although the charitable public is always ready to patronize fairs, raffles, and other religious entertainments, held for the benefit of churches, it was thought that the citizens of Racine needed some stronger attraction to induce them to contribute money to a purely secular society. In these circumstances the happy idea of selling attractive women at cheap rates occurred to the society, and accordingly it was duly announced that an auction of wives would be held one evening last week, at the residence of a leading citizen, the proceeds of the sales to be strictly devoted to the benefit of the Racine Society.

In order to prevent excessive bidding upon the most eligible ladies, and to save the older and more bony ones from the mortification of being withdrawn from the sale without any bids whatever, the auctioneer caused all his feminine stock to be put up in neat brown paper packages, and announced them. not by name, but as lot number so and so. This gave to the proceedings somewhat of the charm of a raffle. Although the auctioneer guaranteed that all his ladies were sound in every respect, and that not one of them could be honestly called ugly or out of repair, the purchasers could not tell, when bidding for any particular parcel, whether she would [illegible] to be the most valuable or the least valuable of the stock. It may be safely asserted, however, that a better invoice of ladies has never been opened. They were all young, and each one of them was fully worth the very lowest price that was bid. The auctioneer conducted the sale like a man of honesty and honor, and although an occasional purchaser would have preferred the wife purchased by his neighbor to the one bought by himself, he could not pretend that he had been cheated.

Thirty-four young ladies and matrons were sold without reserve, and at prices which placed them within the means of the poorest citizen of Racine. The average price paid for a beautiful young girl, warranted to be without false teeth or false hair, and free from all tricks, was only twenty-five cents. Miss Nettie Bull was run up to fifty cents, and knocked down at that price to a reckless spendthrift; but there is little doubt that he could have bought her for a less price if he had bid with more discretion. Mrs. Rosolay brought thirty-five cents after a spirited contest, and by many excellent judges was considered the best purchase of the evening. Miss Lou Baker was bid in for fifty cents by a man who evinced such a readiness to outbid any rival that no bids were made against him. Thirty cents was paid for Miss Nellie Bishop and Miss Wild, while Rev. Mr. Piper bought Miss Frankie Wild for forty cents, she possessing, in his opinion, admirable qualifications for the post of a minister's wife. A Mr. Morton, who paid twenty-five cents for a package alleged to contain a first-class wife, such as no household should be without, unfortunately mislaid her during the evening, and was compelled to go home wifeless. Most of the other ladies sold for twenty-five cents each—although Mrs. Baker was sacrificed for six cents only—and it is remarkable that several experienced matrons commanded no higher prices than were given for untrained girls. Of course, the purchasers of the latter were informed that they would have to break in and train their purchases at their own cost, so that no man could ask to have his money back on the ground that his purchase proved wild and skittish.

It is remarkable that the wives of the purchasers—for many of them were married men—made no objection to the affair. Of course, the married ladies that were sold cared very little how many wives their original husbands might purchase in their place, but those wives whose husbands laid in three or four new wives and brought them home in the original brown paper packages, must have felt that it was an unjustifiable piece of extravagance. Neverthless, they do not appear to have found any fault with the auction and its results—a state of things which shows that the prejudice against polygamy has wholly disappeared in Racine.

While the ingenuity of this method of filling an empty treasury is worthy of all praise, it is apparent that the Racine Society was not greatly benefited. Thirty-four ladies, at an average price of twenty-five cents each brought only $8.50, which is a ridiculously small sum. Undoubtedly, they were worth intrinsically much more than that sum, and had they been shipped to Constantinople, where women are now bringing from $300 to $700 each—these being, of course, war prices—the Racine Society would have reaped a golden harvest. Hereafter, other societies intending to indulge in auction sales of marriageable women will do well to remember that they can find a much better market in the Orient than they can in any of our Western or Eastern States, and we may expect that the business of selling wives to Mohammedan purchasers, for the benefit of charitable and religious societies will become one of our leading industries. The Western wife-crop will rank with the grain and cotton crops, and American wives will be exported in American bottoms all over the polygamous world.

Sitting Bull on the War-Path.

(Special Dispatch to the New York Times.)

BISMARCK, Dakota Territory, Jan. 23. Gen. Miles telegraphs from Post Fort Keough this evening that he has received Indian news which is really of a most startling character. His news comes from an officer of his command, and is substantially as follows: Sitting Bull is camped on Frenchman's Creek, and has over 1,000 lodges with him, including the escaped Nez Perces and the recent deserted Indians from the agencencies. The latter number 280 lodges, with 800 warriors. Sitting Bull's own camp numbers 2,300 warriors and 5,000 women and children. They are splendidly mounted and armed. The Agency Indians are armed with Sharp's rifles, and have plenty of ammunition. They also have a large number of Government horses and mules. With him are all the powerful hostile chiefs. A short time ago Red Bear deserted his agency with 200 lodges. This was just after he returned from Washington. Two companies of Infantry have been sent to Fort Peck to hold it against attack. It is evident that a southern movement is intended by the Indians, as they have been seen within 10 miles of Fort Peck. Gen. Miles can only put 500 soldiers in the field.

Letter from Halifax.

(Special correspondence of the NEWS.)

HALIFAX, N. C., 26th Jan. 1878.

Our special court is progressing finely, clearing the docket of many chronic cases. Northampton court is also in session at Jackson, (12 miles distant) Judge McKoy presiding. At this latter court Savage, (col.) tried for the killing of Hill, (col.) was convicted of murder on Wednesday and sentenced to be hung.

Our people are becoming much interested in the no-fence law. The late freshets have made it a more important question than ever, especially on the river. Can you not get Capt. S. B. Alexander or some other prominent farmer to give us through the NEWS information as to the operation of the no-fence law in Mecklenburg and adjoining counties, where we learn that it has been successfully adopted? Capt. Alexander has many friends in this county who would like to hear from the Master of the State Grange on the subject. K. K.

Statesmanship of the Period.

(From the Indianapolis Journal, Rep.)

The recent effort to remove Sergeant-at-Arms French, of the Senate, resulted in the appointment of a committee of five Senators to confer with him in regard to a fair distribution of appointments. We do not remember to have heard that Webster and Clay, or the great men of any former era, ever worked themselves into a sweat about a little patronage or found it necessary to appoint a committee to confer with a subordinate of the Senate in regard to appointments.

The correspondent of a French paper relates a remarkable contest which he witnessed in the Isle of Java between a parrot and a gigantic spider. The spider, whose body was as large as a small bird's, dropped down upon a young parrot whose mamma was from home, and spreading its huge claws over the nest began sucking its blood. When the mother returned she naturally "went for" the enemy, and seized hold of one of his legs, but whether it be that legs are not a sensitive portion of spiders' organizations, or that this particular insect had an overpowering penchant for the blood of young parrots, he wouldn't let go, until his pain becoming too intense for endurance he turned on the mother and twining all his legs firmly around her neck, was just arranging for a good long suck in that quarter when she gave him an awful dig in the belly with her beak, whereupon he fell over, dragging her to the ground with him. The naturalist then shot him and released the parrot

Washington Star: The President has transmitted a statement in response to a resolution of the Senate showing the cost of the late Nez Perces war. The statement shows that the actual cost of the war was $931,329, of which $581,738 were expended for transportation of troops and supplies. Accompanying this statement is a report from the commissary general of subsistence, which shows that the cost of supplying the troops engaged in the Nez Perces war in excess of supplying the same number of troops in peace was $25,470.

RETURNING BOARD WELLS

Forfeits His Bond and Takes Refuge in the United States Custom House.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 26.—The Returning Board and their sureties failing to answer yesterday, their bonds were declared forfeited, and judgment nisi entered and a capias issued for the arrest of the accused. They are to be detained until they can furnish new bonds in the former amounts.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 26.—The sheriff made a formal demand for Wells at the Custom House, which was refused by the deputy Collector. The deputy Marshal ordered the sheriff from the door of the Collector's office. Sheriff Houston declined to leave, and would have his prisoner or be arrested himself. The sheriff and his party submitted to arrest, and were taken before District Judge Billings, who said he had nothing to do with the matter. The sheriff was then released on his own recognizance. The [illegible] the Custom House. Sheriff [illegible], it appears from the statement of his deputy, is in the Marshal's office, in conference with Gen. Wharton, and will probably proceed to make the arrest as soon as the conference is ended

Sentencing Rapists.

PITTSFIELD, Jan. 26.—In the Superior Court this morning, George Howard, a negro tramp, was sentenced to imprisonment for life for committing an outrageous assault on Mrs. Marcey, at Otis.

The Court also sentenced John Gilbert, colored, to fifteen years' imprisonment, for assaulting a white girl, fifteen years of age, at Lee.

Bank Statement.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—Bank Statement—Loans, $1\frac{1}{2}$ million; specie decrease $1\frac{3}{4}$ million; legal tenders increase $41,000; deposits increase $1\frac{1}{8}$ million; reserve increase $1\frac{1}{2}$ million.

The street car companies of Chicago propose to heat their cars by placing a red hot ball in a metal casket, deposited in the car, which will warm it for two hours, after which more red hot balls will be applied.

German Syrup.

No other medicine in the world has ever given such test of its curative qualities as Boschee's German Syrup. In three years two million four hundred thousand small bottles of this medicine was distributed free of charge by Druggists in this country to those afflicted with Consumption, Asthma, Croup, severe Coughs, Pneumonia and other diseases of the throat and lungs, giving the American people undeniable proof that German Syrup will cure. The result has been that Druggists in every town and village in the United States are recomending it to their customers. Go to your Druggist, and ask what they know about it. Sample Bottles 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Three doses will relieve any cases.

A Last Greeting.

Among the numerous notable sympathetic creations of the celebrated artist, Gabriel Max, who stands first among the painters of the Munich school, are the touching scenes of the blind girl holding the lamp for her fellow believers to descend into the secret catacombs, and that of the poor motherless child, "Julia Capulet," carried by the nun, also the crushed widow compelled to look on the auction of her distrained property. But by many, "A Last Greeting" is considered his masterpiece. It represents a lovely maiden, who has been cast into the arena, in pagan Rome, to be devoured by the savage beasts, for the delectation of the inhuman mob. She leans against the encircling stone wall; at her feet, broken by their fall, lie some simple wild flowers; imploringly she looks up, seeking the hand from which they came. Her whole life, like some gigantic panorama, swiftly flashes through her feverish brain, every act stands out with painful distinctness. Deeply she realizes how often that same strong hand, which now alone bestows a last farewell, had been proffered. Ably it would have protected, beside ensuring comfort, happiness, and health, had she not carelessly and disdainfully turned away. Women suffering from those chronic weaknesses peculiar to their sex are prone to just such actions. Every day they hear of the Favorite Prescription of Dr. R. V. Pierce, of the World's Dispensary and Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. Thousands of these sufferers write in universal commendation of its great excellence and worth. Once within the dreaded pale of disease, it is worse than folly to be careless, and delay the use of this positive means of cure. Ladies suffering from weakness, bearing-down pain, or weak back, and nervous prostration, will find this a specific remedy. On receipt of $1 50, "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," a book of over nine hundred large pages, will be sent post-paid. It contains a clear and concise description of the numerous diseases with which women are afflicted. Address the author, R. V. Pierce, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

If you would increase your crop of cotton, use our Guano.

We have testimonials from every section of the State similar to the following:

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 20th, 1877.

GENTLEMEN—In reply to yours asking the results of the Piedmont Guano used by me last season, I desire to say that I used five tons and like it better than any Ammoniated Guano I ever used. It makes the cotton open earlier and matures it well. I shall use it again next season.

Yours respectfully, N. P. JONES.

AUBURN, N. C., Dec. 29, 1877.

GENTLEMAN—I used Piedmont Guano the past season, together with eight other kinds. I made a careful experiment with them, weighing each when it was put in and the cotton carefully as it was gathered. The Piedmont paid me best, I shall use it again next season. C. N. ALLEN.

VEGETINE.

VEGETINE.

Purifies the Blood, Renovates and Invigorates the Whole System.

ITS MEDICINAL PROPERTIES ARE

ALTERATIVE, TONIC, SOLVENT AND DIURETIC.

Vegetine is made exclusively from the juices of carefully-selected barks, roots and herbs, and so strongly concentrated that it will effectually eradicate from the system every taint of Scrofula, Scrofulous Humor, Tumors, Cancer, Cancerous Humor, Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, Syphilitic Diseases, Canker, Faintness at the Stomach, and all diseases that arise from impure blood. Sciatica, Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout and Spinal Complaints, can only be effectually cured through the blood.

For Ulcers and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, Pustules, Pimples, Blotches, Boils, Tetter, Scaldhead and Ringworm, Vegetine has never failed to effect a permanent cure.

For Pains in the Back, Kidney Complaints, Dropsy, Female Weakness, Leucorrhœa, arising from internal ulceration, and uterine diseases and General Debility, Vegetine acts directly upon the causes of these complaints. It invigorates and strengthens the whole system, acts upon the secretive organs, allays inflammation, cures ulceration and regulates the bowels.

For Catarrh, Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Palpitation of the Heart, Headache, Piles Nervousness and General Prostration of the Nervous System, no medicine has ever given such perfect satisfaction as the Vegetine. It purifies the blood, cleanses all of the organs, and possesses a controlling power over the nervous system.

The remarkable cures effected by Vegetine have induced many physicians and apothecaries whom we know, to prescribe and use it in their own families.

In fact, Vegetine is the best remedy yet discovered for the above diseases, and is the only reliable BLOOD PURIFIER yet placed before the public.

UNQUALIFIED APPRECIATION.

BOSTON, Nov. 18, 1875.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:—

Dear Sir,—During the past five years I have had ample opportunity to judge of the merit of Vegetine. My wife has used it for complaints attending a lady of delicate health, with more beneficial results than anything else which she ever tried. I have given it to my children under almost every circumstance attending a large family, and always with marked benefit. I have taken it myself with such great benefit that I cannot find words to express my unqualified appreciation of its goodness.

While performing my duties as a Police officer in this city, it has been my lot to fall in with a great deal of sickness. I unhesitatingly recommend Vegetine, and I never knew of a case where it did not prove all that was claimed for it. Particularly in cases of a debilitated or impoverished state of the blood its effects are really wonderful; and for all complaints arising from an impure state of the blood it appears to work like a charm, and I do not believe there are any circumstances under which Vegetine can be used with injurious results, and it will always afford me pleasure to give any further information as to what I know about Vegetine.

STATE NEWS.

Edgecombe Superior Court begins on Monday next.

The pine tree upon which Calvin McGraw hanged himself last Spring a year ago, is dead.

About 175 liens and mortgages have been filed in the clerk's office of Franklin county since the 1st of January, 1878.

The last words of the late Rev. Junius P. Moore were: "The journey has been a difficult one, but I have made it safe."

Roanoke News: The lock-up at this place was broken into by tramps Thursday night and a lot of blankets stolen therefrom. This is probably the first case on record where a jail was broken into.

Speaking of old chairs, the Roanoke News says: Rev. John W. Primrose of Warren county has an old straight-backed mahogany chair once the property of the great English poet, Samuel Coleridge.

Concord Sun: For the past eighteen months, the railroad tank at our depot, has been attended to by a woman. She pumps on an average 500 gallons of water every day, and stands up to it like a man.

Fayetteville Gazette: The great event of the holiday season was the grand mask and fancy-dress ball, given at the Williams Opera House last Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the Harmony Club.

Franklin Courier: On last Sunday night the store of Messrs. Freeman & Bro., at Carpenter's Mills, in this county, was entered by thieves, and about two or three hundred dollars worth of goods stolen therefrom.

There is a man in Warren county who has been married five years and is the father of seven children. The first time his wife presented him with a boy, the second triplets, the third another boy, and the last, twins.

Concord Sun: Two more gold mines were opened in number nine township last week. On Tuesday a lump of gold as large as a hen's egg was picked up in one of them. There are now six mines in that immediate vicinity.

Asheville Citizen: One Patterson, sentenced to the penitentiary at the late term of the Transylvania Superior Court for mule stealing, was shot in the shoulder and severely wounded by the guard at the Railroad works at Swannanoa Gap last week while attempting to escape.

Fayetteville Gazette: Quite a large number of the members attended last Friday evening's meeting of the Fayetteville Lyceum Association. After the closing of the regular debate, upon repeated solicitation, Mrs. Judge Buxton rose and addressed the chair, demolishing in succession two or three of the "lords of creation," and proving herself more than a match for any of the polemics, in either repartee or argument. The cross-firing was very spicy toward the close of the evening, and seemed to be intensely enjoyed by the auditory.

From the Asheville Citizen we learn that a Mrs. Wilson, of Yancey county, left her three children at the house and walked up to her mother's to spend the evening, a distance of some 200 yards, instructing the children to sit up until she returned. Getting sleepy they went to bed. About 10 o'clock the house was discovered to be on fire, and before it could be reached it was all ablaze. One of the children, aged 7, was consumed in the bed in which it slept; another, aged 5 or 6, died last night; and the third, aged 10, is bound to die, having been unconscious for 24 hours.

SOUTHERN NEWS.

Virginia killed only three railroad passengers last year.

Mr. W. W. Corcoran has given $500 to the Virginia Historical Society.

A colony is being organized in Philadelphia to settle near Barnesville, Va.

A negro man, his wife, and child, in Clark county, Ky., are all supplied with six fingers on each hand.

Governor Holliday, of Virginia, proposes to give a sumptuous dinner at the gubernatorial mansion every week.

Mr. Alexander H. Stevens is very well. He rarely misses a session of the House, and works hard outside.

Rev. J. G. Minnegerode, of Richmond, Va., has accepted a call to Calvary (Episcopal) Church, Louisville, Ky.

Judge Charles S. Lewis, of Harrison county, W. Va., died last Tuesday. He was a man of fine reputation and good talents.

Rev. R. A. Cobb, of Charleston, West Virginia, is recommended for the bishopric which Dr. Eccleston has just declined.

Virginia politicians say that it is probable that General Joseph E. Johnston will go to the next House in place of ex-Governor Walker, who will not again be a candidate.

Baltimore Sun 25: Another party of twelve, belonging to the Baltimore colony organized for removal to Florida, left on the steamship George Appold yesterday afternoon.

A little daughter of E. C. Hickson, Esq., of Greensboro, Georgia, fell into a well fifty feet deep a short time since, and, strange to say, was taken out without having sustained material injuries.

A meeting of salaried men was held in Macon, Georgia, on Saturday, and adopted resolutions protesting against the tax on salaries of $1,000 and upwards, imposed by the City Council. The tax is one per cent. on such salaries.

Baltimore American 24th: Yesterday, at Holliday-Street Theatre, while a calcium light was being manipulated by the attendants, a defect in the arrangements allowed the hydrogen and oxygen gases to come into contact with flame, and the explosion which followed wounded several men, one of them so seriously that his life is despaired of.

A bill has been introduced in the Mississippi Legislature which makes carrying concealed weapons a misdemeanor, and provides for a fine of not less than ten nor more than fifty dollars, or imprisonment for not less than ten nor more than sixty days, or both fine and imprisonment in case of conviction. It also requires the offender to give bonds for twelve months.

Both Houses of the South Carolina Legislature have passed resolutions fixing Tuesday, 2d, for the election of the six circuit judges ousted by the decision of the Supreme Court. Judges Mackey and Townsend, two of the number, handed in their resignations to the Governor on Wednesday, which were accepted. All the old judges are candidates for re-election.

Charleston News and Courier 24th: The Governor and State officers are in receipt of information that Peter Cooper, of New York, has expressed a determination to purchase Limestone Springs, near Spartanburg, for the purpose of establishing an institute similar to the Cooper Institute of New York. Maj. Bomar, the agent of parties holding mortgages upon the property, is now in New York negotiating the sale with Mr. Cooper or his agents, and the Governor is daily expecting an announcement that the transaction has been completed.

The Empire of the Osmanlis.

The defeat of Turkey in the war just ending, marks the beginning of the downfall of the Mussulman monarchy, which five centuries ago rose upon the ruins of the empire of the Ceasars. The Ottoman empire is one of the largest in the world. It comprehends all the countries which are more or less under the authority of the Turkish Sultan, and includes, besides Turkey in Asia, and that part of Turkey in Europe which is under his immediate sovereignty, the vassal principalities of Moldavia and Wallachia, Servia, and Montenegro, in Europe; Egypt, with Nubia, Tripoli, and Tunis, in Africa; and a part of Arabia, including the holy cities of Mecca and Medina, in Asia.

Turkey in Europe embraces an area of 134,865 square miles, with a population of 10,400,000. Its dependent States in Europe cover 69,350 square miles, with a population of 5,927,510. Its area in Asia is 668,580 sq. m., with a population of 16,150,000. It possesses in Africa an area of 950,930 square miles (dependent States) with a population of 8,625,000. The total area of the empire is 1,823,725 square miles, and its total population is 41,102,000, of which about 24,000,000 are Mohammedans, and 15,000,000 Greek and Armenian Christians. This immense population, about the same in number as that of the United States, is a thoroughly heterogeneous mass, composed of Turks, Sclavonians, Roumanians, Greeks, Albanians, Armenians, Circassians, Koords, Gipsies, (214,000 in number), Jews, Druses, Arabs, Moors and Tartars. And over them all the Grand Turk has exercised a pure despotism, the sharpest edges of his sceptre being always turned against the Christian portion of his subjects.

The history of the rise and progress of the Empire of the Osmanlis is full of interest. It originated about the 13th century, in the early part of which the Turkish nation inhabited the steppes, east of the Caspian sea. In 1326 they commenced an aggressive policy, and gained a footing in Europe by the taking of Gallipoli, and other fortresses on the coast. The Greeks made light of these conquests by which the barbarians had only taken from them a "hog's sty" and a "pottle of wine," in allusion to the magazines and cellars built by Justinian at Gallipoli; but, as the historian Knolles quaintly remarks, "by taking of such hogsties and pottles of wine, the Turks had gone so far into Thracia, that AMURATH, a few years later, placed his royal seat at Adrianople." After a series of wars with the Sclavonian tribes of the Upper Danube, the Venetian Republic and the Byzantine Emperors, the Turks, under MOHAMMED II, in 1453, stormed Constantinople, and destroyed the last relic of the Empire of the Ceasars. BAJAZET II, who reigned from 1481 to 1512, extended his dominions to the present limits of the Turkish Empire in Asia and Europe. His successors, SELIM I and SOLYMAN I, "the magnificent," raised the Ottoman Empire to the heighth of its power and splendor. During their reigns, no ship belonging to a nation hostile to the Turks dared then to navigate the Mediterranean, so completely did their fleets command the sea.

In the reign of SELIM II, which extended from 1566 to 1574, occurred the first collision of the Turks with the Russians. SELIM undertook to cut a canal from the Black Sea to the Caspian, with 5,000 workmen protected by 80,000 soldiers. The Russians attacked them and drove them off. Until then, the middle of the sixteenth century, the Russians were a people unknown in Southern Europe.

For a century and a half the Turks were engaged in bloody wars of varying fortunes, with Venice, Spain, Moldavia, Poland, Persia, and Austria. The war with the latter power was for the possession of Hungary, which passed forever from Turkish domination in 1699.

During the war of the Spanish succession, in the reign of ACHMET III., who held the sceptre from 1702 to 1730, the Turks became involved in a war with Russia. The Czar PETER invaded Moldavia with 80,000 men, but was met by near two hundred thousand Turks, and driven back with heavy loss. Soon after, in 1736, the career of Russian aggression began. Azof and other important fortresses on the Black Sea were seized; and Russia entered into a scheme with Austria for the partition of Turkey between them, but the scheme was foiled by the defeat of the invading armies, and peace was concluded at Belgrade, Russia resigning her conquests in Moldavia.

The Empire enjoyed profound tranquility until 1769, when the Russians, in violation of the treaty of Belgrade, invaded Moldavia, and took Choczim—a disaster soon followed by the destruction of the Turkish navy off Chios, the capture of the Danubian fortresses, and the total defeat of the main army of the Turks at Shumla. The campaign was ended on the 10th of July, 1774, by which the entire independence of the Tartars of the Crimea was guaranteed. This treaty was soon broken by the CZARINA, who took possession of the Crimea and the whole country eastward to the Caspian, and compelled the Sultan to agree, in 1784, to this arrangement.

The insolence of the Russians, who had been guilty of such unprovoked oppressions and perfidious violation of solemn engagements, so incensed the proud Mohammedans that they compelled the Sultan to take up arms in 1787; and this was followed in 1788, by another foolish attempt on the part of Austria to arrange with Russia a partition of Turkey; but, as before, the Austrian forces were completely routed, and she was compelled to agree to a treaty at Sistow. The Russians, however, continued the war until January 9th, 1792, when a treaty of peace was signed at Jassy. By this treaty, the Dniester was made the boundary line, the session of the Crimea was confirmed, Turkey was made to pay 12,000,000 piastres (£109,000, or $528,759) for the expenses of the war, and Belgrade was restored to the Sultan.

The occupation of Egypt by the French brought on a war between them and the Turks, in which the latter by the aid of the British, were successful in regaining their lost territories, occasioned by the revolt of Egypt in the reign of MUSTAPHA II. In revenge for the defeat of his Egyptain expedition, Napoleon contrived to entrap the Sultan into a war with Russia and Britain, which was confined to a struggle in Egypt, in which the British were worsted. Egypt, subsequently, during the reign of MAHMUD I I, threw off the authority of the Sultan, and is now merely a nominal dependency. Greece, too, about this time, established her independence of Turkey; and the Turkish dominions were still further curtailed by the loss of the country between the Dniester and the Pruth, which by the treaty of Bucharest in 1812, was surrendered to Russia.

ABDUL MEDJID ascended the throne of the Osmanlis in 1839. During his reign the Czar, thinking that the dissolution of the Ottoman Empire was at hand, constantly interferred with its internal administration; and by a strained interpretation of former treaties, tried to wring from the Sultan some acknowledgment of a right of interference with the domestic affairs of the country. It was an attempt of this sort to obtain the exclusive protectorate of the members of the Greek Church in Turkey, that brought on the Crimean War of 1853-1855, in which for the first time after a long lapse of years, the Turks, with the help of England and France, were victorious over the Russians.

By the peace of Paris, Turkey regained a portion of territory north of the Danube, between Moldavia and the Black Sea, and extending along the coast to within 23 miles of the mouth of the Dneister; and was, to some extent, emancipated from the subservience to Russia into which she had been forced by previous treaties.

Turkey remained at peace with her ancient enemy until the 24th of April 1877, when Russia declared war, and the Czar's troops crossed the Turkish frontier. The Porte made an appeal for mediation by the European powers, which was responded to by proclamations of neutrality, and single-handed Turkey entered the unequal contest. Under the heroic leadership of Osman and Suleiman, her armies made a gallant fight, but wholly unavailing. With the signing of the pending treaty of peace, the proud heir to the sword of the Osmanlis must bow his head in the humiliation of a greater defeat than ever before befel a Sultan of Turkey, and witness the first stroke towards the ultimate dismemberment of the Ottoman Empire.

THE passage in the Senate of the Matthews silver resolution by a vote of 43 ayes to 22 noes, is the first silver victory, and is thought to render the final adoption of Bland's bill sure. But the lack of a two-thirds majority is rather discouraging. Messrs. Lamar and Hill are the only two Southern Senators who voted in the negative.

THE Louisville Courier-Journal has the following: "Until we shall be in Adrianople I shall not treat," said the Grand Duke Nicholas. As the Governor of North Carolina said to the Governor of South Carolina, "it's a long time between drinks."

THE discussion about hell still goes on. Isn't it about time that the preachers up North were giving their congregations a little more of "Christ and Him Crucified?"

TUTT'S PILLS

The Greatest Medical Triumph of Modern Times.

Recommended by Physicians.
Indorsed by Clergymen.

These Pills have gained a popularity unparalleled. Druggists everywhere say their sale is unprecedented.

The Reason is Obvious.

They are no worthless nostrum, puffed up to deceive the credulous, but are the result of long research, by a chemist and physician of thirty years' experience, who values his reputation more than gold.

What Tutt's Pills will do.

THEY CURE Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Piles, Sick Headache, Sour Breath, Dizziness, Flatulence, and Indigestion.
THEY GIVE Appetite, Flesh to the Body, and Depot Lo[illegible]
THEY ACT on the Blood, and remove all Impurities.
THEY CURE Gout, Rheumatism and Kidney Disease.
THEY CURE Dizziness, Heartburn, and Bilious Colic.
THEY CAUSE the food to assimilate, and nourish the body.
THEY CURE Nervousness, and give refreshing Sleep.
THEY ARE invaluable for Female Irregularities.
THEY ARE the best Family Medicine ever discovered.
THEY ARE harmless, and always reliable.

DAILY NEWS

SUNDAY,..............JANUARY 27. 1878.

THE WEEKLY NEWS is the best weekly paper published in North Carolina. It is only ONE DOLLAR per year, postage paid, contains 32 columns of plain printed news from every section of the country, and important advertisements. Always Cash.

A Cashmere Suit.

Oh, softest Cashmere, since thou art the fashion,
Tell me thy story, as we sit to-day:
Cam'st thou from Tartar steppes, or plains Circassian,
Or guardian hills of mystical Cathay?
Australian walks, or Zulu's savage land?
Or broomy braes of lovely Westmoreland?

So soft and delicate, that English fairies
Might wear thy fleecy folds; they mayhap, came
From the green pampas around Buenos Ayres,
Or mountains where fierce Afghans guard their fame.
Not Jason's fleece had tale more wild and strange
Than thou could tell of travel and of change

Of lonely watches and of patient labor,
Of peaceful shepherds underneath green trees,
Of flocks kept only by the gun and sabre,
Of weary journeys over pathless seas,
Of giants made of cranks and wheels and bands,
And wondrous dyes from far-off tropic lands,

Of cunning hands that wove in strange devices
Endless reliefs and borders, fold on fold:
Until thy web with many a charm entices
The smile of beauty and the meed of gold.
Yet, marvelous fleece, forget each memory
In the still fairer ones that yet shall be.

When young Jeannette, with soft, persuasive fingers,
Foldeth thy beauty o'er her gentle heart;
For Love around the maiden ever lingers,
And all sweet things in her have share and part.
... strange fate shall find its noblest ...
Blent with fond human hopes and human grace.

MARY AMELIA BARR.

GENERAL NOTES.

Henry Ward Beecher has accepted the chaplaincy of the Thirteenth New York Regiment.

The life saving service shows a saving of 1,461 lives during the year, and property worth $1,713,647.

A Parisian's definition of a beautiful woman: The paradise of the eye and the purgatory of the purse.

A school for the ballet, consisting of 300 children gathered from the slums, has been opened in London, for the supply of the Opera House.

At a State dinner in Washington, on the 24th, President Hayes handed Mrs. Waite, and Colonel Bristow of Kentucky handed Mrs. Hayes to the banquet.

Nevada people complain that the county authorities in California ship their indigent sick and vagrants into their State, and they want the practice stopped.

A Chinese legend says that the feet of every pair to be united in wedlock are from infancy tied together with an invisible thread of red silk. This explains why some young chaps' feet get so tangled up on their way home o' nights.

A meddlesome old woman was sneering at a young mother's awkwardness with her infant, and said: "I declare, a woman never ought to have a baby unless she knows how to hold it!" "Nor a tongue either," quietly responded the young mother.

John Robinson, a leading sporting man of Nottingham, Eng., was elected a member of the Town Council, and celebrated the event by offering $2,500 for the relief of the poor, to be distributed by local ministers, but each one has indignantly refused to touch the money.

A statement having appeared in Edmund Yeates' paper that "a little man bearing the name of a former Lord Chancellor" had severely fractured the seventh commandment, the present Lord St. Leonards rises in all his dignity to say that he is not the person in question.

The total amount of opium imported into the United States for 1877 was 2,589,924,383 grains. Deducting one-fifth for medical uses, there remain for opium eaters 6,125,383 grains daily. If thirty grains are taken as a daily dose, there are in the United States over 200,000 men who eat opium.

The chairman of the London School Board said lately that he believed that the working classes were unopposed to religion, for in London, out of 190,000 children, not fifty had withdrawn from religious instruction in schools, while 18,000 voluntarily went into examination on religious knowledge.

A gentleman married his servant. A short time after their union they gave an evening party. Conversation flagging, silence reigned, when one of the ladies said, "Awful pause!" The lady of the house immediately exclaimed, "Awful pause, indeed! So would you have awful paws if you had done the dirty work in your life that I have!"

"Can you tell me where Washington's monument is?" asked a rural gentleman in Charles street, Baltimore, the other day. "Just lift your eyes off the ground," said the person addressed, rather tartly, "and you'll see it." "Well I hev lifted my eyes," said the rural party, looking his informant calmly in the face, "an' I don't see nuthin' but a darned old fool."

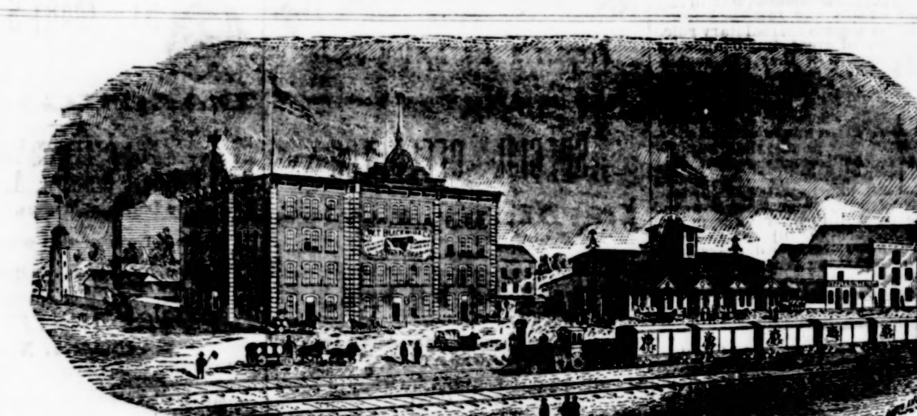

Murder is cheap in California. Drayman Kearney electrified an assemblage of workingmen in San Francisco a week ago by announcing that a fellow with a patent medicine had offered to take the lives of twenty men—heathen Chinese lepers and thin white hell-hound allies—for the small sum of five dollars. Twenty corpses for five dollars is at the rate of twenty-five cents a head.

A certain actress who is not precisely in the hey day of her youth and beauty has now only one desire—to settle herself in life, assure herself a position. "Suppose," she says to a friend, "that I were to get up a grand star combination and make a tour of the provinces." "But," says the friend, "there isn't a soul in the provinces that knows you—that ever heard of you." "Precisely, I might get married: you see."

One of the star prima donnas of the Imperial Opera, St. Petersburg, recently took her benefit. On being called for the 20th or 30th time before the curtain, she advanced to the footlights, and, addressing the audience in the Russian language, offered to show her gratitude by singing a national Russian song. The song was received with enthusiastic applause; but the prima donna was much disgusted when the management subsequently fined her 2,000f. for "addressing the audience without permission."

Senator Voorhees is graphically described as giving, at first sight, the impression of a man having "a large amount of forehead, a larger amount of hair, and a long frock coat." His hair is very luxuriant, is worn rather long, and always combed straight back away from the forehead. Added to the shape of the head, which is larger than the average, and largest on top, it gives an appearance of top-heaviness, which is increased rather than diminished by the long but narrow beard and drooping moustache. The color is a compromise between red and brown.

XANTHINE!
PROF. HERTZ'S GREAT
GERMAN HAIR RESTORATIVE
PREPARED BY
XANTHINE CO. RICHMOND, VA.
(From Rev. W. W. Bennett, D. D., Senior Editor Richmond Christian Advocate.)
I have tried the Xanthine, and found it to be all it claims in restoring hair to its natural color and removing dandruff.
W. W. BENNETT.

(From Rev. Mr. Cameron, Minister of the Presbyterian Church South.)
MOSSY CREEK, Tenn., August 22, 1876.
Xanthine Co., Richmond, Va.:
I have used the Xanthine now for three years, and have induced others to try it, and have never known it to fail in accomplishing all you claim for it. It is an excellent tonic a pleasant dressing, removing and preventing dandruff and all unpleasant itching, promoting and preserving the natural growth and color of the hair, and rendering it glossy and pliable. I confidently, cheerfully and knowingly recommend it.

BURCHARDT'S DISINFECTANT
ODORLESS.
Is the most powerful and lasting Disinfectant known. It may be safely used under any circumstances. After two minutes no odor from it or the place where it was used. Warranted to purify the air instantly in the sick room and hospital, preventing the spread of fevers and contagious diseases. Damp cellars made healthy. Barns and stables purified; put it in water closets and urinals and it renders them odorless and free from contagion. Thickly inhabited houses, crowded rooms and halls given a pure and healthy atmosphere by allowing it to evaporate. Street cars should use it and thus drive contagion from them. For ships it is the best known means for counteracting the odor from bilge water, will purify the ship and in no way injure any material. Beer saloons should use it as all bad odors will immediately disappear. Railroad companies need it in their waiting rooms and water closets. Restaurants and hotels need it.
Undertakers can preserve bodies one month with one pound of the Disinfectant.
Receiving vaults in cemeteries freed from any possibility of contagion.
It is cheap, valuable and highly recommended as the BEST DISINFECTANT
by every one that has used it.
Sold by all druggists—box 20 cents—bottle 25 cents.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

——The market stalls were supplied with some fine meats yesterday.

——Five droves of mules and horses are quartered in the rear of the National Hotel.

——The State Treasurer has issued a drummer's license to W. P. Harvey & Co., Baltimore.

——Regular meeting of Wm. G. Hill Lodge, No. 218, to-morrow (Monday) evening, at 7½ o'clock.

——$10 reward! For the newspaper man who will be the first to tender his annual offering to "Gentle Spring."

——The colored deaf and dumb boy who ran away a day or so since, has returned to the Deaf and Dumb and Blind Institution.

——The quiet of the Mayor's Court was not disturbed by a single trial yesterday. There were also no cases before the Magistrates.

——The Governor has appointed Henry E. Garsed, residing at 113 South 4th street, Philadelphia, a Commissioner of Affidavits for the State.

——The city was crowded with vehicles from the country yesterday. Wilmington street was almost blocked during a part of the day.

——No decisions have as yet been rendered in either the "Swazey" case or the "Tupper [illegible]" [illegible] judges holding the papers.

——Not a single sheriff settled yesterday, and yet the term of grace expires on the 3rd proximo. Only a few more days in which to settle up.

——Rev. Dr. Pritchard will this morning deliver the first of a series of sermons on "Religion in the Family," at the Salisbury street Baptist church. In the evening Dr. Hartwell, a returned missionary from China, will occupy the pulpit.

——Three drunken white women disgusted the respectable passers on Wilmington street, by their imitation of the movements of the "lords of creation" when under the depraving influence of vile spirits.

——A "Rocky Mountain" horse, attracted much attention on our streets by his queer appearance, his entire body being covered by a coat of curly hair about an inch in length. He is the property of a gentleman of Tennessee, who obtained him from California.

——The "Amateur Dramatic Association" of Fayetteville recently gave a performance for the benefit of the Orphan Asylum and forwarded to Supt. Mills, $70.40. net receipts. Cannot our local amateurs get up something of the sort, for the benefit of our city poor, or other charitable purpose?

"As You Like it."

The box sheet for the sale of tickets is now open at Heartt's Drug Store. Secure your tickets in time.

N. C. R. R.

A few days ago we stated on what we deemed good authority, that the train down this road from Charlotte on Saturdays, went no further than this point. It is an error; the train runs through, and no order directing such change as we mentioned has been issued.

A New Postoffice Route.

We learn of the establishment of a new post route from Littleton to Brinkleyville. This has been done through the efforts of Senator Merrimon. Our senators and representatives are using every effort to secure a more perfect mail service, and we are pleased to hear of this new route.

Y. M. C. A.

The Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association will in a day or so call on our citizens for the purpose of collecting such sums as they may feel disposed or able to give for the purpose of lifting our city poor from their depths of misery. Attend to the necessities of these sufferers by giving the committee as much as you can.

Market Report.

The clerk of the market reports the following as having been exposed for sale for the past week: Beeves, 52; hogs, 176; lbs. sausage, 2860; bunches of fish, 725. The supply of country produce has been good. Eggs, chickens and butter have been sold at very low prices, while pork only brought from 5½ to 8 cents per lb.

Personals.

Messrs. John Gatling and Walter Clarke have returned from Halifax court.

Capt. Francis H. Cameron has just reached home from a business tour to Richmond and other points.

Rev. J. B. Hartwell, who has for a long time been engaged in the missionary work in China, is with his family registered at the National.

Tournament at LaGrange.

From our correspondent at LaGrange we learn that the young gentlemen of that charming little burg held a Tournament on Friday. The distance to be passed over was 80 yards, the number of rings 3, and five tilts were allowed. Messrs. Charles Ivey and M. W. Moye each were so fortunate as to take all the rings—15, and in another contest between them to decide the tie, Mr. Ivey came out the victor, Mr. Moye missing one ring out of 27. The fortunate Knight crowned Miss Anna Bizzell as "Queen of Love and Beauty," while Miss Sallie Elmore was crowned "First Maid of Honor" by Mr. Moye, the second best in the contest. A large number of persons were present, who enjoyed the occasion to the utmost. These "tournaments" are productive of much pleasure, and are at the same time useful, as teaching the manly exercises. The young men of our own section might easily hold one this spring, with pleasure to themselves and our people, especially the feminine portion.

State Guard Notes.

A cavalry company has been formed at Newberne, and on the anniversary of Gen. Lee's birthday, paraded in that city. It is the only cavalry organization in the State. Nearly all the companies of the Guard paraded on "Lee's birthday." Companies "B" and "C" of the First Regiment, at Newbern, attracted particular attention by their large numbers and excellence in drill. Quite a deal of interest is manifested by Guardsmen in regard to the bill to increase the efficiency of the volunteers, which is now before Congress.

We notice in the Richmond, Va., Dispatch, a very complimentary allusion to the good behavior and discipline of the colored troops of the Guard, who paraded here on the 1st of January. The Dispatch says that they are superior to the colored battalion of Richmond.

The 22nd of February, "Washington's Birthday," will be observed all over the State this year, and in fact all the old parade days will witness military displays. This is as it should be.

Supreme Court.

Court met at 10 o'clock, on yesterday. Present, Chief Justice Smith, and Justices Reade, Rodman, Bynum and Faircloth.

7TH DISTRICT.

State vs. Dixon & Gretter from Guilford; argued for the plaintiff by Attorney General, and for defendants, by John A. Gilmer.

Cobb & Cobb, Administrators, vs. Margaret Gray et als, from Alamance; argued, John A. Gilmer for the plaintiffs, and James E. Boyd for defendant.

State and city of Greensboro vs. Joseph H. Shields, from Guilford; argued, J. N. Staples and Merrimon, Fuller & Ashe for the plaintiffs, and James T. Morehead for the defendant.

A. H. Lindsay vs. Smith & Hoskins, from Guilford; argued, J. N. Staples and Merrimon, Fuller & Ashe for the plaintiff, and John A. Gilmer for defendant.

Court adjourned until to-morrow (Monday) at 10 o'clock, when appeals from the 8th District will be called.

Romantic Matrimony.

Justice Upchurch was visited yesterday morning by two Africans, a male and a female, who in a trembling, nervous manner expressed a desire to have him then and there slip the matrimonial noose over their hands. The Justice discovered upon inquiry into the state of the case, that "Villikins" had woed and won his dusky "Dinah" while both were spending a season of retirement and recreation at the county workhouse. He had the couple stand before him, but the blushing (?) bride [illegible] head, she was so timid. In a few moments the knot was tied and the twain smilingly departed. Truly a romantic courtship and marriage.

Movements of Cotton in Raleigh

Receipts for the week ending January 25, 1878, 517 bales; receipts for the same time last year, 677 bales; decrease in receipts for the same week this year, 160 bales. Whole receipts since 1st of September to date, 34,632 bales: whole receipts same time last year, 34,695 bales; decrease in receipts this year to date, 63 bales.

Our receipts have fallen off during the past week as compared with last year, and we may expect a falling off for several weeks to come. Our market has been very dull for the past week for low grades, but the better grades are in active demand, and the market closed at 10¼ for middlings.

Our New Fire Company.

The "Phoenix Fire Extinguisher Company," which is composed of some of the best material in our city, have a meeting at the Mayor's office to-morrow evening. Their "chemical" apparatus will arrive this week, it is expected. The members, upon the arrival of the engine, propose having a test of its efficiency in putting out fires. They will erect two sham houses, of very combustible material, and then set the same on fire, one to be played on by a hand engine, while they will take the other in charge. The contest as to which has the greater power, will be an interesting one.

Internal Revenue Notes.

The following have been the receipts at the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue in this city:

Monday,	$283.55
Tuesday,	452.31
Wednesday,	1,867.02
Thursday,	10,073.82
Friday,	621.76
Saturday,	2,663.04
Total,	$15,961.50

The Sparkling Catawba Springs

Dr. E. O. Elliott has succeeded in getting a postoffice established at his popular place of summer resort, to be known as "Sparkling Catawba Springs." A new mineral spring has been discovered about a mile north of that place, and will be a valuable addition to the present springs. It is one of the strongest mineral springs in the State.

Gen. Joseph E. Johnston.

Gen. Jos. E. Johnston is spoken of as a probable candidate for the House of Representatives from the Richmond, Va., district, as it is said that ex-Gov. Walker, the present member, will decline a re-election.

The Concord Sun says that a pedler named Green made an assault upon a lady of number nine township, on last Thursday, but, becoming frightened, fled before accomplishing his vile purpose. He was subsequently captured in Stanly county.

A New Match.

Lights only by friction on the prepared surface on the box. No danger from careless handling, no accidental fires, absolutely safe and certain to ignite. No smell, no noise, try them. For sale by Pescud, Lee & Co., Druggists.

Unequalled in its location, and unsurpassed in its arrangements, for the convenience and comfort of the traveling public, the Colonnade Hotel on Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, holds the highest rank.

A Tribute From Afar.

From a late issue of the Alta-Californian, one of the leading newspapers of the Pacific coast, we clip the following very handsome allusion to our "City of Oaks." The writer of the article is evidently a gentleman of taste, and we assure him of our appreciation of the compliment paid us:

"From the very moment of our arrival at the railway station at Raleigh, we were favorably impressed with that city; the architectural beauty of the station and other buildings of the R. R.; the handsome equipages drawn up at the depot, each with its attendant Jehu, who not vociferously, as elsewhere, but civilly and gently called your attention merely to the fact of the presence of his vehicle; the neatly paved space around the station; all these gave promise of a model city. A drive of ten minutes, over the level, neatly macadamized streets, brought us up to the hotel which we were to dwell in for a brief period. We were taken in charge by a good looking darkey and conducted to a comfortable room. After a slight attention to matters of the toilet, we retraced our steps down stairs and found ourselves standing on the stoop of the building. By this time night had come on apace, but her dusky shadows were dispelled almost by the glowing lights of the lamps which stretched in endless perspective up and down the long, straight street. We could not resist the attraction which the appearance of the town presented, and so strolled along slowly, on sidewalks beautifully flagged with some dark-colored stone, and perfectly regular. The stores on either side of the street displayed interiors dazzling with lights, and the displays of goods would be creditable even in our own "Pearl City of the West." Every few moments some handsome carriage, preciously freighted with a load of bewitching femininity, whirled by us, the rattle of whee's ringing on the firm clear pavement of the street. And just here the fancy seized us that we had been suddenly transported to a city of the "land of the unreal," everything seemed so strangely beautiful, neat and orderly. We passed several blue coated guardians of the peace, handsomely attired in the neatest of uniforms. All seemed to be picked men, and the councilmen of the city are to be congratulated upon having made such selections of men for the force. They reminded us of the famous "Broadway Squad," of New York, or, to come nearer home, our own "lady lifters" of Sacramento street. We presently returned to our caravanserai, and after enjoying a real Southern supper, turned in for some rest.

In the morning we again strolled forth, and found to our surprise that the little city looked even more beautiful in the clear sunlight than when illumined by the myriad gas lights of the night. Like a lovely woman at the breakfast table, the place seemed as sweet and pure in the morning's sunshine as if it had just taken a bath. The avenues and streets are kept perfectly clear of even the slightest obstacle, and the shining paved surfaces stretched far away. At frequent intervals the hydrants on the curbing indicated that this Metropolitan city of the "Old North State" enjoyed the blessing of an unlimited supply of God's own gift, pure, sparkling water.

The sidewalks were rapidly filling with an active, bustling crowd, which reminded one by their quickness of motion and gait of the people of the New England States, in fact they were what one would call "chipper." We saw no idleness nor loafing, the persons passed were neatly, and in great part, even fashionably attired. Such an amount of energy we would never have looked for in a southern city, where we expected that owing to climatic influences the people would be slothful. The hand[illegible] passed impressed us favorably. The fair sex (or the specimens we saw) were simply superb. Their beauty was of an attractive type and the becoming modesty of their manner and their perfect breeding forced one to admire, nay, love them. Just here we must close and like the writer of sensational novelettes, say 'to be continued in our next.'"

A Gentle Hint.

In our style of climate, with its sudden changes of temperature—rain, wind and sunshine often intermingled in a single day—it is no wonder that our children, friends and relatives are so frequently taken from us by neglected colds, half the deaths resulting directly from this cause. A bottle of Boschee's German Syrup kept about your home for immediate use will prevent serious sickness, a large doctor's bill, and perhaps death, by the use of three or four doses. For curing Consumption, Hemorrhages, Pneumonia, Severe Coughs, Croup or any disease of the Throat or Lungs, its success is simply wonderful, as your druggist will tell you. German Syrup is now sold in every town and village on this continent. Sample bottles for trial, 10c.; regular size, 75c.

Mr. Theodore Hobgood.

[Rocky Mount Mail]

Mr. Theo. Hobgood, recently of the Wilson Advance, but now with the Raleigh News, honored us with a call on last Saturday. Mr. Hobgood is a live newspaper man, and will add much to the already popular paper, the News.

Wm. Lloyd Garrison, the veteran abolitionist, is out in another letter to Mr. W. E. Chandler, of New Hampshire, in which he accuses President Hayes of a flagrant abandonment of his principles and pledges, and cordially approves of Mr. Chandler's letter to the New Hampshire republicans; but as the latter passed resolutions cordially indorsing Mr. Hayes's administration, Mr. Garrison's letter can hardly yield much consolation to Mr. Chandler.

Gov. McClellan, of New Jersey, has signalized the exercise of the appointing power with which he is invested by sending to the Senate of that State for confirmation the Hon. Amzi Dodd, a prominent republican, as a judge of the Court of Appeals, and the nomination was unanimously ratified by a democratic Senate.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, bronchitis, catarrh, asthma, and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for nervous debility and all nervous complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive, and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. W. Sherar, 126 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y. jan 21-w1m

When Dr. R. V. Pierce was a candidate for State Senator, his political opponents published a pretended analysis of his popular medicines, hoping thereby to prejudice the people against him. His election by an overwhelming majority severely rebuked his traducers, who sought to impeach his business integrity. No notice would have been taken of these campaign lies were it not that some of his enemies (and every successful business man has his full quota of envious rivals) are republishing these bogus analyses. Numerous and most absurd formulas have been published, purporting to come from high authority; and it is a significant fact that no two have been at all alike—conclusively proving the dishonesty of their authors.

The following is from the "Buffalo Commercial, of Oct. 23d, 1877:

"Hardly a dozen years ago he (Dr. Pierce) came here, a young and unknown man, almost friendless, with no capital except his own manhood, which, however, included plenty of brains and pluck, indomitable perseverance, and inborn uprightness. Capital enough for any young man, in this progressive country, if only he has good health and habits as well. He had all these great natural advantages and one thing more, an excellent education. He had studied medicine and been regularly licensed to practice as a physician. But he was still a student, fond of investigation and experiment. He discovered, or invented, important remedial agencies or compounds. Not choosing to wait wearily for the sick and suffering to find out (without any body to tell them) that he could do them good, he advertised his medicines and invited the whole profession, of every school, to examine and pronounce judgment upon his formula. He advertised liberally, profusely, but with extraordinary shrewdness, and with a method which is in itself a lesson to all who seek business by that perfectly legitimate means. His success has been something marvelous—so great indeed that it must be due to intrinsic merit in the articles he sells more even than to his unparalleled skill in the use of printer's ink. The present writer once asked a distinguished dispensing druggist to explain the secret of the almost universal demand for Dr. Pierce's medicines. He said they were in fact genuine medicines,—such compounds as every good physician would prescribe for the diseases which they were advertised to cure. Of course, they cost less than any druggist would charge for the same article supplied on a physician's prescription, and besides there was the doctor's fee saved. Moreover, buying the drugs in such enormous quantities, having perfect apparatus for purifying and compounding the mixture, he could not only get better articles in the first place, but present the medicine in better form and cheaper than the same mixture could possibly be obtained from any other source.

It may be thought that all this having reference to Dr. Pierce's private business has no point whatever when considered in connection with the proper qualifications of a candidate for the Senate. Perhaps. But it is the fashion now, and will be for a fortnight more, with sundry journals, to make sneering allusions to this very matter. After that brief period, they will be quite ready to go on doing his work as before, and as always before, to speak of him as a great public benefactor."

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 21st, 1877.

The undersigned certifies that he held for collection for account of Chas H Harrington, New York, one eighth of single number ticket No. 62,850, Class M., in the Louisiana State Lottery, which drew the third capital prize of $20,000, on Tuesday, December 11th, 1877; said ticket having cost the sum of $1.25, and that the amount was promptly paid on presentation of the ticket at the office of the Company.

Overtasking the Energies.

It is not advisable for any of us to overtask our energies, corporeal or mental, but in the eager pursuit of wealth and fame or knowledge, how many transgress this salutary rule. It must be a matter of great importance to all who do so to know how they can regain the vigor so recklessly expended. The remedy is neither costly or difficult to obtain. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is procurable in every city, town and settlement, in America, and it compensates for a drain of bodily or mental energy more effectually than any invigorant ever prescribed or advertised. Laboring men, athletes, students, journalists, lawyers, clergymen, physicians, all bear testimony to its wondrously renovating powers. It increases the capabilities for undergoing fatigue, and counteracts the injurious effects upon the system of exposure, sedentary habits, unhealthy or wearying avocations, or an insalubrious climate, and is a prime alterative, diuretic and blood depurent.
